

Host the 2021 TASA Conference:
Call for Expressions of Interest

We are seeking expressions of interest for hosting the November 2021 TASA Conference.

The annual conference is a key event for sociologists to present their research and network with peers, usually attracting around 500 participants. Hosting the conference is an ideal opportunity for a university, department or other workplace to showcase their achievements, and promote their strengths. Alternatively a collective of sociologists in and outside of the university sector in a particular city or region may wish to use the conference to highlight the benefits of sociology to a broader audience.

TASA uses the services of a professional conference organiser to provide continuity in processes and assist in organising the administrative side of the conference. The intellectual input into the conference is provided by the Local Organising Committee, which will select the theme, invite guest speakers, determine the format and maintain overall responsibility for the success of the conference. The Local Organising Committee is also expected to appoint a media liaison who is responsible for engaging with the press about the conference generally and about specific papers which will be of interest to the public.

Expressions of interest for 2021 are due to TASA Admin on or before Friday July 12, 2019.

In preparing an expression of interest, please refer to TASA's Conference Hosting Application Guidelines.

For more information on hosting TASA's 2021 Conference, including preliminary inquiries, please contact TASA Vice-president Alphia Possamai-Inesedy.